.36.17.14.33 -- Dec 1, 2013 12:00 PM - 4th -- hi Guys, I have few questions about the update 14.36.17.14.33.1. 1) Does the new firmware that I downloaded actually have the same files inside that the firmware update 14.36.17.14.33.1? 2) Does the new firmware have the same speed of wifi? 3) Is it possibile to use the same default network setting that I had before the update?(I have WPA 2-AS with the default password wpa2) 4) I have a Huawei hg532s on my mom's phone. What is the model of this phone? 1) I have a new firmware update 14.36.17.14.33.1 in both the update folder and the external sd card that I just pulled out from the phone. But the thing is I can't find any other firmware updates that say 14.36.17.14.33.1. It's something I'm not used to seeing. 2) It is faster, but only on the first loading screen. After that, it starts slowing down. 3) How do you mean that you have the same wifi setting? You have to use the same network settings. 4) I am pretty sure that you need to provide your model number when you buy your phone. That's just my opinion. Thanks for any help or information. If you have the answer, I would appreciate your help. 1) To check, go to the "about phone" option and click on the "settings" tab. You should see a "software information" option. The firmware update that you downloaded 14.36.17.14.33.1 will be on this list. 2) I can't answer this one, but when I was experimenting with my phone, I tried to update the firmware to 14.36.17.14.33.1. It was too difficult for me to do, so I just left it at 14.36. 82157476af
